FULLY NOURISHED

Grape-Nuts a Perfectly Balanced Food.

No chemist's analysis of Grape-Nuts can begin to show the real value of the food—the practical value as shown by personal experience.

It is a food that is perfectly balanced, supplies the needed elements of brain and nerves in all stages of life from the infant through the strenuous times of adult life, and is a comfort and support in old age.

"For two years I have used Grape-Nuts with milk and a little cream for breakfast. I am comfortably hungry for my dinner at noon."

"I use the meat, plenty of vegetables and fruit, in season, for the noon meal, and if tired at tea time take Grape-Nuts alone and feel perfectly nourished."

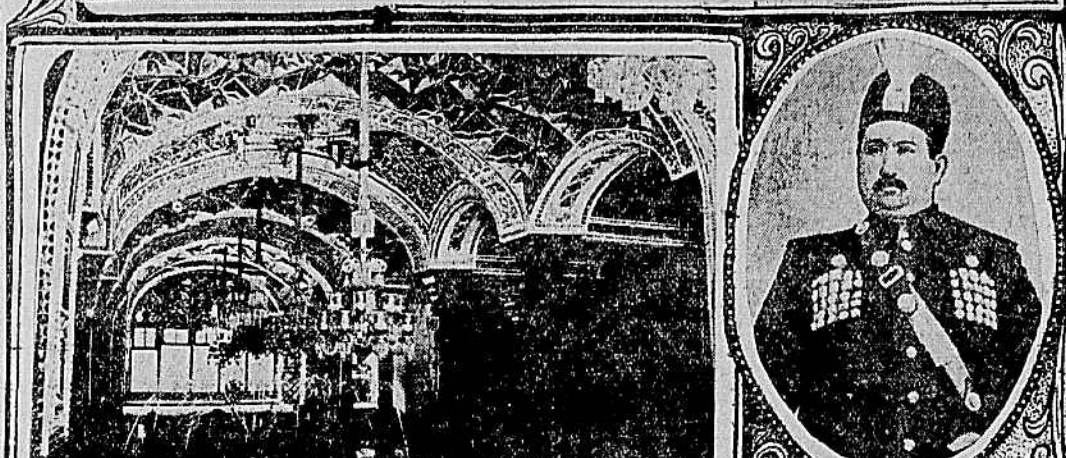

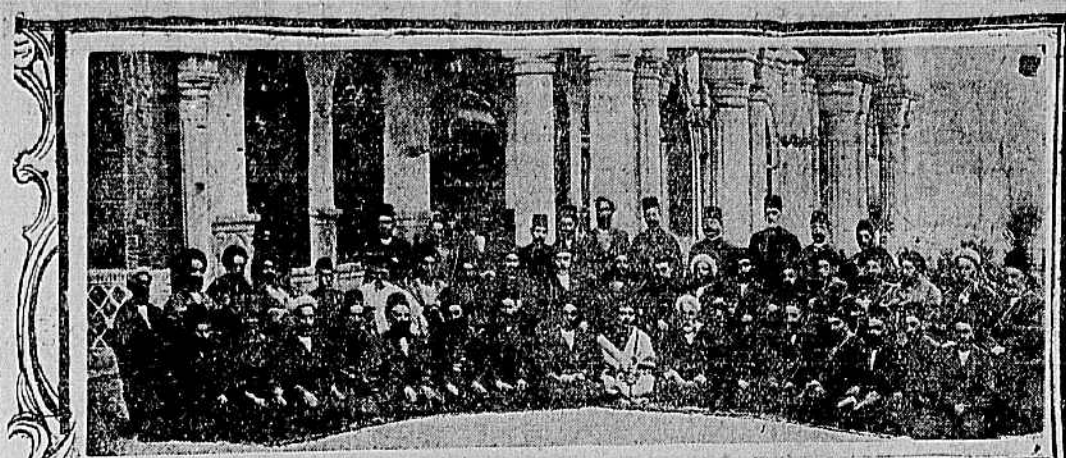

"Nerve and brain power and memory are much improved since using Grape-Nuts. I am over sixty and weigh 155 lbs. My son and his wife, and my daughter, have all improved, are now using Grape-Nuts."

"My son, who is a traveling man, eats nothing for breakfast but Grape-Nuts and a glass of milk. An aunt, over seventy, seems fully nourished on Grape-Nuts and cream." "There's a Reason."

SPIRITS MUST BE LEGALLY BRANDED

Circulars Issued for Guidance of Collectors, Gauging Officers and Others.

Times-Dispatch Bureau, Washington, D. C., June 25. Commissioner Capers of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, has sent out circulars for the guidance of collectors and gauging officers, as well as distillers, rectifiers and wholesale liquor dealers, in the matter of branding packages of distilled spirits so as to make such branding conform to the decision of the Attorney-General concerning the scope and effect of the pure food law.

The new regulations, which will go into effect July 1st, classify distilled spirits as "high wines," "alcohol," or "spirits," as the case may be. It is directed that casks be marked or branded on the head in accordance with the following definitions. High wines are defined as those which are practically the first product of distillation, in which the substances congeneric with ethyl alcohol have not been transformed or their properties otherwise partially eliminated, so as to convert them into any form of potable spirit.

Alcohol is held to be all forms of distilled spirits from which the substances congeneric with ethyl alcohol have been removed for practical purposes altogether, and which have been heretofore marked as "pure, neutral, or cognac spirits." That product which has been commercially known as "alcohol" from which the congeneric substances have not been removed, will be marked "commercial alcohol."

In the case of "spirits," as the case may be, it is directed that those products of distillation in which, by reason of the original material used and the methods of distillation employed, the characteristic substances congeneric with alcohol have been retained, which differentiate them into various forms of potable spirits, such as whiskey, brandy, rum and gin, will be marked with the particular name of such potable spirit, as the case may be, without other description and without the addition of any adjective or descriptive word whatsoever, and the name of such particular spirit will be used even although when any of such spirits may be drawn from the receiving cisterns into tanks certain congeneric products of distillation have not been changed by aging or otherwise, so as to bring them to the potable form in which they are ultimately to be placed upon the market.

Provided such spirits have before being drawn into the casks, been diluted to potable proof so as to then constitute a crude form of potable spirit.

Stamping of Packages.

The following regulations for the guidance of collectors in stamping the packages of rectifiers and wholesale liquor dealers are as follows:

"In explaining the basis of his compromise, Commonwealth's Attorney Page said to the court that he was convinced that Woodbridge was the proprietor of the poker-room, which had caused the proceedings, and that therefore he gave the jail sentence to Woodbridge."

The charges against the three gamblers, John Baughan, Joseph Woodbridge and Robert Hastings, were not argued before a jury in the Corporation Court yesterday, as the three prisoners pleaded guilty and their cases were settled by compromise. The agreement reached by the court was as follows:

"That John Baughan and Robert Hastings should each be fined $100 and placed under a $500 security for their good behavior for twelve months; and that Joseph Woodbridge should be fined $25 and serve thirty days in jail."

Messrs. Harry M. Smith and Ernest H. Wells represented the accused.

James Madison

IN George Washington, the American Revolution had its conquering general; in John Adams its intrepid organizer; in Jefferson its bold philosopher; and in Madison its constructive statesman.

He it was who caused to be deeply imbedded in our highest law those vital and fundamental guarantees of life, property and Personal Liberty.

In private life he was extremely social—yet truly temperate—drinking good malt beer and wine in strict moderation. Once, when sick in bed, he caused his couch to be wheeled near the dining-room door, that he might call to his acting representative at the festive board: "Doctor, are you passing the bottle? Do your duty, doctor, or I must cashier you!"

Justly named "The Father of the Constitution," he died at eighty-five. When shall his name be forgotten?

Family Wiped Out

Mother and Four Daughters Suffocated in Chicago Fire.

CHICAGO, ILL., June 25.—Five are known to be dead and more than a score of persons were injured, several of them seriously, as the result of an explosion, followed by fire, in a five-story building, the upper floors of which were used as a boarding house, at 131 Huron Street, to-day. The explosion occurred in the plant of the Pabst Chemical Company on the ground floor. The dead are Mrs. Mary Nolan, janitress of the building, and three of her daughters—Jennie, Emma and Helen. They seemingly had been hemmed in by the flames and suffocated before help came. The remains of the five unidentified men, thought to be an employee of the Chemical Company. His body was recovered from the basement after the flames had been extinguished.

Mary Nolan, fourteen years old, another daughter of the janitress, is missing, and it is thought she may have been burned.

The explosion wrecked the front of the building, and the fire spread rapidly, owing to the inflammable nature of the chemicals stored in the basement. The employees of the Pabst Chemical Company escaped, though several were injured by flying glass and debris. They were nearly all girls. The building was almost a total wreck.
